{about me}

I love creating, innovating, designing and making – and most of all I love sharing my passion and enthusiasm for the arts with others.

I originally trained in production design, graduating from Nottingham Trent University in 2006 with a BA Hons in Designs for Film and Television. Since then I have worked in various art departments for independent films, theatre productions and music festivals; from art directing and set dressing to prop making and set building. I also went on to complete a post graduate course in Prop Making in 2009 at the University of Arts, London.

Now, working as a freelance arts practitioner, I am using my experiences in set design and prop making to deliver creative workshops to a variety of community groups and events throughout West Sussex, with an emphasis on providing socially inclusive and accessible sessions. In addition to the art workshops I offer, I am also co-founder of Lemon & Lime Theatre. We aim to bring the world of classical theatre to life through dynamic performances and workshops, giving young audiences the opportunity to access the theatre by experiencing both on stage and backstage activities.
